The Lexow Committee After Captain Schmittberger.

MR. FORGET IS VERY FORGETFUL.

The Representative of a Steamship Company Admits Paying Large Soms for "Protection," but Cannot Remember Where the Boodle Was Distributed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.-The Lexow comannue yesterday returned to a line of investigation which was found to be a most fruitful field during the midsummer. The subject under discussion during the greater portion of the day was the tribute extorud from shipping companies under the guise of "pretection," of sums of money pad to poligemen, and by them turned over to superfess in office. The star wither systemay was Augustin Forgetagent of the French steam; hip line. He succeeded in forgetting a great muny things that the committee very much desired to know, but some of his testimony was em-phane enough to make things interesting for captains and policemen.

Mr. Forget testified that his company paid $3% to the police for extra services. The policeman on the pier was paid $10 a week and $500 went to other police officials. One of the company's books, which was produced, showed that in November, 1891, $5.0 had been paid for "special surveillance of the pier." Mr. Forget could not remumber to whom the mony was paid. Mr. Goff asked Mr Forget if Policeman De Gin had been removed from the pier because he refused to divide with the captain the money he received from the company. Mr. Forget could not remember

Policeman DeGan to tified that he was stationed on the French line pier for eleven years. He said he received $10 a week for working overtime and on his days off. He was sent there in 1880. The superintendent of the line offered him $10 for extra services. He new ribed a charge made again-t him, and got along very well. In 1:61 Wardman Vail came to him and said: "Captain Schmittberger wants this $10 yette Vell," sald De Gan, what I was neserf and would not give up the $16 I carned by hard work after my regular hours. I was mireley grant as a week, and the captain wested every cent. I sold him that Captain Schmittlerger would max want my salary."

"Vail said: 'You had better, is the captain can make you traible. Lot Captain Schmitthers to his worst. I replied. "I wont beakin.

A few days later De Gan was transferred to a capai four wharf.

He professed not to rem now who had interceded for the captain. It was represented to him that Care thin Schmittberger would be dismissed if the step story came out and, for the sake of the captain's family, Mr. Forget was urged to keep it dark.

Mr. Ferget, apolegizing for his imperfect knowledge of the English language, wild the did not want to go on record as saying that he had been approached only in Captain Schmittbergers' behalf. Some one, whom he said he could not remember, had in the last two weeks, asked him not to testify against any police official. Among Mr. Forget's "impressions" was one to the effect that seven men had shared in the $500 Counsel Goff got the witness to admit he had written the list of seven names and told the cashier to divide the $500 but Mr. Forget could not remember their

Policemen John Corcoran was called. Mr. Gott held a broken "locust" in his hand, and energed the giant policeman with breaking the club over a small man's head. The small man was made to stand by the side of the policeman, who towered above him. The policeman denied that he had broken his club on the prisoner's head. He said he shattered the "locust" across an iron railing which the small man had

Peter Edward Quinn, the small man, is a laborer His clothes were in rags from the rough treatment he had received at the big policeman's hands. He said Corcoran struck him in the face when he reached the station house. He was struck because he tried to talk James Clifford testified to the brutal treatment Quinn had received. When the witness protested he was himself clubbed and kicked and thrown into a cell

Nellie Weinberg testified that Alderman "Silver Dollar" Smith refused an offer of $350 for protection for a coffee saloon with lady boarders, which Mr. Goff pronounced the "most startling evidence yet produced."

THE NEW YORK BOLTERS.

They Nominate Everett P. Wheeler to Oppose Senator Hill.

New York, Oct. 10.—A third state ticket has been put in the field by the Shepard Democracy of Kings county, and it is expected that it will be indersed by the independent of the indepe pendent Democrats throughout the state.

The ticket presents as the candidate of the anti-Hill Democracy for governor Everett P. Wheeler, of New York city, and indorses the candidacy of the regular Democratic nominees for lieutement governor and judge of the court of appeals—Daniel N. Lockwood and Charles Frank Brown.

After having decided upon its candidates Mr. Shepard a committee proceeded to nominate Hon Charles S Fairchild for chairman of the campaign committee.

As the Shepardites are said to have received assurances that their nominee for governor will accept all that remains to be done to make the ticket the regular choice of the third party is to secure the signatures of 3.600 persons as indorsers of the candidate- and to file these with the secretary of state on or before Oct. 15. On this showing the secretary of state will is-sue the order for the printing of the third

PRIMITIVE CHINAMEN.

WELL VERSED IN CHINESE AFFAIRS

He Spent Many Years in That Country, and Talks Entertainingly of His Observations-Li Hung Chang a Statesman,

Washington, Oct. 10 -Ambaseador Patenotre, the representative of the Freuch republic in the United States, is regarded as one of the best informed men in diplomatic life on China and the scenes of the present conflict between that country and Japan. A good part of his life in the French diplomatic service has been spent at Pekin and Tientsin, where he was in constant communication with Li Hung Changi It was M Patenotre who signed. with Li Hung Chang, the famous Tientsia treaty of peace between France and China. Prior to that he had served some years a Pekin, first as the secretary of the French legation, then charge d affaires and finally minister. He was the special envoy of France to Anam and Tonquin in the -tir ring conflicts of St, when France secured her strong foothold in Asia, and he closed that international event by signing the treaty of Hue. His views on eastern affairs, therefore, po-sess unusual interest.

M Patenotre was asked by an Associand Press representative as to the defense of Pekin which the Japanese now threaten to strike, and the roads over which the invadors will have to pass if they march on "The defenses are very primitive." said the imbossador. "The outer wall is a huge affair completely entireing the city. It is about the height of a six story building, and write enough for travel by horses and carriages but as a means of defense it would amount to nothing against modern armliery. The walls about Tonquin were even -tronger being built by skilled enguiders, but they quickly gave way before

big guns
"There is bardly any such thing as roads about Pekin and Thintsin so that travelis very dath off. There are occasional stretches of good roads, but these are exceptional. The respector Tents's to Pekin, at at twenty miles, used to take me two or three days. Usually it is made by the river route, and that also takes several days. It is the most primitive kind of traveling each passenger having a boat to There was no steamer above Tiens in all hough the capital and the em-peter were only unity miles above." The locality between Tientsin and Pekin of which the armossed it spoke is the one referred to me the dady reports from the Son it was used the probable route of the Japanes - Me D to be tre was asked what differities of a mate would be encountered by the invaling force.

The clinical will be the greatest diffi-every bing is to denup in November. The called to so so were that it almost puts a stop to travel and communication. It has taken a full month for me to get a letter from Shanshai to Pokin in the winter The Japanese are from a warm country. entirely unused to severe cold, and, as far as we hear without special provision of clathing for the intense cold coming on the latter part of this month. That promises to be the greatest difficulty they will have to contend against

It is a singular fact that during M. Patenotre's long service in China, much of the time in the same city as the emperor, he did not see the Chinese ruler. "The emperor practically lives in a city by himself," said he, "as the imperial palace and grounds are surrounded by great walls, from which the emperor does not come from one year's end to the other, and to which no one except the ministers and court attendants ever penetrate. If at rare intervals the emperor comes outside, there is a public proclamation in advance, and any one in the streets when he passes through is severely punished. The only glimpse ever secured of the emperor is by pricking holes in the white paper windows which take the place of panes of glass The ambassador was asked if his observations of the great latent resources and enormous population of China led him to believe that they would ultimately be aroused and prove resistless.

"Undoubtedly the population is vastsomething like four hundred millionsbut there is much difference between a great population and a great army," said the ambassador, significantly.

Speaking of Li Hung Chang the ambassador said:

"He does not speak English, French or any other language than his own, all intercourse with foreign officials being carried on through an interpreter. There appears to be a settled policy among Chinese diplomats and officials to adhere to their own language, so much so that the Chinese diplomat at Paris, who became proficent in making French bon mots, created something of a sensation and was afterward recatled Viceroy Li impressed me, however, as one of the very few Chinese officials who at heart desired to accept the moderns ways of European countries, and if he had not been held back by the overwhelming sentiment of China against eastern civilization he would have modernized China long ago. As it is he has introduced quite a European atmosphere into his private household. Li strikes one as a student and statesman rather than as a warrior. His tendencies are all those of a scholar. He has sought to modernize the Chinese army and navy, but compared with the equip ments of European and American troops which improve constantly, they are far out

Benzetta Wins the Tuturity Stakes in Three Straight Heafs.

LEXINGTON, Ky. Oct. 10 -The riches trotting stale ever provided in the world $31.500, was that of the Kentucky futurity which was tracted here yesterday after-noon in the presence of 8.69 people. Of the nine 3-year-olds that faced the flag E. W. Ayres' classmat filly Benzetta was the favorite over the field. Although she got off in the last division, before a furlong was trotted she was mistress of the situation. She swept post her field of brilliant young-ters, and before the half mile pole was reached was leading by two full lengths, and came home an easy winner, with four lengths to space.

The second and third heats were simply processions, as Bonzetta so far outclassed her field that it was no contest whatever. The speedy bay colt Futurity and the black colt Axivite made a hot fight in the second and third heats, for the $3,000 sec ond money. Celaya having finished second in the first heat. Futurity won second place, while Axinite, although finishing third in the second and third heats, lost the $1,000 that went to the third horse, is being given to Colaya, a chestnur filly.

Iil., and I live in Evanston, III. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I vote of the population.

should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did. to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell himwhat to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to fell me, or eise was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example f those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comoaratively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to pet along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were guccessful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what he people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess, I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts 16 pages to each with a recent photograph on each page of some active lead. was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy ank secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world. will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know the series will be about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know the series will be about the se nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book-I do know this, that for the ordinary, active women, which is the time of the book—I do know kins, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Let no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better linck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. Tooly know that there is produced a second Platarch's Lives that its these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and must have a light carpenter to put on those that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

Had His Way.

This is a true story from Winchester. Two men lived in the same house with their families. One of them owned the house and rented part of it to the other. They were firm friends. The owner was taken ill, and the doctor said he could not live. A day or two before he died he called his friend to his bedside and said:

"You have been a good friend to me, Jim, and I will show my appreciation of your friendship. After I am dead you can live in this house rent free as long as you

Jim was profuse in his thanks. "I've only one stipulation to make," added the dying man, "and that is that you must ride in the first carriage to the grave on the day of my funeral." On the day of the funeral the hacks lined up in front of the house, with the hearse at the head. Just as the procession was about to move to the cemetery there was a commotion. Jim was trying to crawl into the hearse alongside the coifin. The efforts of half a dozen men were necessary to get him away from the door. "What are you trying to do?" they asked. "Ride in the fir-t carriage, of course, and I'm going to, you bet, or somebody'll get

"At Rome."

A story used to be current among the students in Aberdeen which showed that up to a comparatively recent date ancient prejudices were retained by the old fashioned Scotch professors. It related to the late Principal Pirle, who had a weakness for the refinements of life.

Just after "at home" cards became fashionable one of the direst specimens of the old professional regime was surprised to receive a missive which read as follows: "Principal and Mrs. Pirle present their compliments to Professor T, and hope he is well. Principal and Mrs. Piric will be 'at home' on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock." This was something which evidently required an answer, but the recipient of it was quite equal to the accasion. He wrote:

"Professor T. returns the compliments of Principal and Mrs Pirie and informs them that he is very well. Professor T. is glad to hear that Principal and Mrs. Pirie will be at home on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Professor T. will also be at home."-Youth's Companion.

A Modern Version.

A Georgia magistrate was perplexed by the conflicting claims of two women for a baby, each contending that she was the mother of it. Saved Mrs, Rennie's Life.

Mrs. Jennie Rennie of Virgil, N. Y. had been sick for over a year or more with overflow of the gail and ulcers of the stomach. Her physician told her she could not live. Mrs. Rennie's mother had found such benefit from the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, that she persuaded her daughter to use it, which she did. with the result that it cured her of these diseases, and she says she was never as well as now.

THE PRESIDENT COMING TO MID-DLETOWN. The Sick May Receive Medical Services Free of Charge.

The President and members of the European and American Staff of German, English, Irish, Scandinavian and American Doctors of New York city will be at the Russell House, Middletown, on Wednesday, October 17th, one day only. The sick and afflicted may consult them without charge during their stay. If you are incurable they will tell you; therefore invalids must not take offence if they are rejected, as no case will be accepted unless there is a moral certainty of a cure being effected. These Doctors are graduates of the best universities of Europe and America; they are of the highest standing in the medical profession and have had unlimited experience in the treatment of all Chronic Diseases and Deformities. As the latest methods, instruments and appliances methods, instruments and appliances of the various schools of both the Old and the New World are familiar to and at the command of this staff of doctors, it is reasonable to believe that in ninety cases out of every hundred a cure can be effected, even when the patients have been give. up as incurable by doctors who hav had less experience. Do not be discouraged because your doctor can-not give you relief, or even if he talls you that you cannot get well, for it matters not what your disease may be, you can consult the doctors free, and, if curable, they will treat you: if incurable, they will give you such advice as will tend to prolong life and afford you the greatest relief.

The doctor will visit Middletown one day each month Office hours trom 10 3. m. to 6 p. m.

H. CLARK, Chairman.

The pressure of business duties has compelled Senator Hinchliffe to decline a nomination tendered him by the Democrats of Passaic county,

The Republican County Convention of Ulster county, yesterday. smashed the elate which the bosses had made and nominated the follo wing ticket: For Sheriff, Philip Schwentz; for County Clerk, John H. Davis; for Coroner, Jacob A. Van Wagenen; for Justice of Sessions Adam Lasker.

President Cleveland was hunting deer, yesterday, on the island of Naushon in Buzzard's Bay, with Malcolm Forbes and other swells. If he was the right kind of a Democratic President he would have been in New York State gunning for Shepard, Grace, Fairchild and his other fool friends.

The Republican county ticket has some elements of strength and some of weakness. Its strength lies in the fact that it is well distributed geographically. It weakness lies in the manner in which it was nominated, for although the slate was broken in the selection of a candidate for Sheriff, the rest of the ticket was made by the bosses long before a delegate was elected to the convention that ratified it. With care in the selection of candidates the Democrats have more than a fighting chance in the county.

Shepard and his gang of self righteous Pharisees have nominated Everett P. Wheeler for Governor. This simplifies the situation. These men would not vote for Senator Hill under any circumstances, and votes thrown away on Wheeler count for only half as much as votes for Morton would have counted. It's a good thing, too, to have Shepard and his featherheads stand up and be counted. We'll know just how many socalled Democrats are anxious to go on record as thinking themselves better, purer and nobler than their

After sleeping over it, some of the Republican candidates for Sheriff who were dumped, yesterday, are marveling at their stupidity in being led into the trap set for them by Mr. Beakes and his friends. It was very funny, of course, to smash the Hock-Odell-Strong combination, but now that the reaction has come they realize that they are just as much outside the breastworks as they would have been had Mr. Strong been nominated. They see, too, just how they were tricked and duped. Mr. Brazee was sacrificed ruthlessiy by professed friends who had promleed to stand by him, and Mr. Oldroyd was more shamelessly lied to than any canaidate in a generation. The excuse of those who deceived and betrayed those for whom they professed friendship is that they did so not because they loved them less, but because they hated Hock more. But that "butters no parsnips" for Jush or Jim.

At 3:50 a. m., the walls of a sixstory building in course of construction at 74 Monroe street fell, crushing in the roof of a three-story brick tenement.

There were thirty persons in the building, four of whom were killed, eleven injured and at least three others are missing and supposed to be burried in the ruins.

A home was wrecked in Brooklyn. At Englewood, N. J., a chimney fell, crashed through the roof and killed Mary Kerr, daughter of the owner of the house.

DEER NOT RELEASED.

Held in the Catskill Park Because of Sullivan County's Open Season. From the Kingston Freeman.

The Forest Commission, which has charge of the Catskill deer park, where the State has been protecting deer for the purpose of restocking the Catakill mountains, did not order tne release of the deer this fall, as was intended. This was because of the amendment to the game laws by which Sullivan county hunters would have been able to shoot all the deer as fast as they came out of the park. If this special provision is repealed this winter by the Legislature, then the deer will be released from the park next spring and left to roam about the mountains.

A CHANCE FOR GEORGIE.

He Can Buy the Duke of Devoushire's Town House and Be One of the Nobs. Here is a great chance for the Gould or the Vanderbilt millionaire. The Duke of Devonshire is to sell his town house in Piccadilly so as to prevent his saccessor being placed in a dilemma in order to meet the demand for payment of death rates, which will be difficult for him to face. The duke asks the bagatelle of "4750,000" for his house, a mere trifle considering how ready an Astor was to bay Cliveden that cost as much again.

It will be an awful pity to let such a hance slip by you. Georgie. Go in and buy Devonshire House and one of the nobs. But this death rates business in England is playing the deuce with rich men's property, and the Duke of Devonshire shows more consideration for his successor than the former duke showed for him in consenting to part with such a hig portion of his estate. Had not the present duke married the Duchess of Manchester his patrimony would not have suffered, and renowned Devonshire House would still continue to be the center of attraction for the political party of which he is a shining light.-Boston Herald.

The Bicycle Tread.

Have you noticed the latest walk that the society girl is assuming? I was standing at the corner of Fourth and Market yesterday when about a dozen young women passed, and every one of them had the same style of walk. I do not think it is anything like those that have heretofore gone the gaits after the girls have returned from the eastern resorts. This one is a stride made as if the girl was trying to keep her pointed shoes from catching into her skirt flounces. It is a slipshod walk and makes one feel as if the walker were wishing she were back on her bicycle. Yes, it's the bicycle tread now, the vaccination limp and Newport step having gone completely out.-Louisville Courier-Jour-

Sail Extraordinary

Commencing to-day, Oct. 8, and every day this week, there will "sail" out of our store a large lot of Remnants of Dress Goods and Cloths - Veivet, velveteen trimming, silk, also millinery trimmings and cloaks. The prices at which they are marked will not require much "wird" to ret them "a sail." This will be a more attractive sale than r gular remnant sale, as you can get quantities of some goods at about remnant prices. It is hardly necessary to say the most desirable pieces will go first.

THE ORANGE FESTIVAL

The Ladies' Aid Society Realizes a Neat sum from Its Orange Banks.

The orange festival at St. Paul's Church, last evening, was well attended, and the principal entertainment of the evening consisted in the breaking of the 170 orange banks. which had been returned, and the counting of the funds. The sum of $471 was taken from the oranges, and the Epworth League gave $50, the Sunday school $25 and the Junior League nearly $10 of this amount.

There are nearly eighty-one oranges which have not yet been re turned and from which the Ladies' Aid Society hope to realize quite an additional sum. The receipts of the two evenings from other sources, will swell the total considerably, and the ladies of the society, who have labored so faithfully, under the direction of their president, Mrs. Darwood, have reason to be gratified at the result of their labor.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL CON-VENTION.

B. B. Odell, Jr., Nominated After Some Very Amusing Proceedings.

The Republican Congressional Convention of the Seventeenth District, met in the Assembly Rooms at 1:30 o'cleck, this afternoon, and was called to order by Hon. T. N. Little, who nominated Hon. M. D. Stivers for

Mr. Stivers was grateful for the honor and for other honors which the Republican party of the district had conferred upon him. It took him fifteen minutes to tell how grateful he was and whoop up the delegates to a little appearance of enthusiasm.

Everett C. Bell, of Rockland, Mercein Skinner, of Sullivan, and F. R. Salmon, of Orange, were elected Secretaries.

Col. Dickey, of Newburgh, presented the name of Benjamin B. Odell, of that city. The best thing he said about him and which seemed to please the delegates the most, was that he has always been a thick and thin Republican, a working Republican, who has always worked at the polls for the party even if he had to go without his ainner.

The nomination was seconded by Judge Tompkins, of Rockland county, Ex-Judge Thornton, of Sullivan county, and Judge Fullerton, of Or-

The Rev. Mr. Litchfield, of Warwick, who had Victor A. Wilder's boomlet in charge, introduced it to the convention. He began his remarks by saying: "We have listened to the thunders of Sinai. Now come to Calvary." There are some parts of Mr. Litchfield's speech that wouldn't look well in print, in fact were absolutely unprintable, for the convention was having lots of fun with the speaker and the frequent rounds of applause seemed to excite bim, and, it is charitable to assume, that he lost his head, and that his tongue ra away with him. He told off colored stories, made indelicate allusions and if his candidate had had a ghost of a chance be would have killed it deader than Marley. But the reverend gentlement enjoyed himself and so did the convention.

Mr. W. M. Sayer, of Goshen, seconded the nomination of Mr, Wilder. The roll was called.

Rockland and Sullivan voted solidly for B. B. Odell, Jr., who also received all the votes of the Orange county delegation, except those of Mr Sayer, of Goshen, Geo. Slaughter, of Hamptonburgh, and Jesse Durland end Capt. Benedict, of Warwick, Mr. Wilder, of the Warwics delegation, voted for Odeil.

Before the vote could be announceed, Mr. Wilder took the floor and in arambling and incoherent speech declared that he loved the Republican party and Ben Odell.

He closed by moving that the nomjustice of B. B. Odell, Jr., "be made by acclamation forty times over,"

Col. Bradley, who rose to second Mr. Wilder's motion, prefaced his remarks by saying to some enthusiastic delegates: "If you fellows don't get over your over-confidence, you will get the worst licking you ever had."

The nomination of Mr. Odell was then made unanimous with a shout.

Charles Schoommaker, of South Falls burgh, sullivan County. Too Much Married.

Detective Thomas Hutchinson, of Belvidere, Warren county, N. J., left Monticello, Monday, with Charles Schoonmaker, a son of Martin Schoonmaker, of South Fallsburgh, whom he had arrested, last Wednesday, on a charge of bigamy.

Schoonmaker married Nettie Orr. of Bridgeville, ten or twelve years ago, and after a short time left her. Next, it is charged, he married a woman in Hancock, Delaware county, and, it would seem, soon tired of her also, for he went to Belvidere, N. J, where he married another. This last one it was who was the cause of his being indicted by the Warren county Grand Jury.

Schoonmaker is a rather good look ing man, thirty-six years of age, and neither drinks, chews nor smokes. He has served as an engineer on the Lehigh and Hudson Railroad, but at the time of his arrest was doing noth-

AN UNUSUAL INCIDENT.

A Daughter Redeems Her Promise to Her Dying Mother to Pay a Debt of [[Twenty Years' standing.

Mr. Thomas Walters, of Cottage ctreet, was greatly surprised. Tuesday, by the receipt of a registered letter from Miss Rose Neary, of Rex ville, Stuben county, containing twenty-five dollars, in money with the explanation that it was money owing to him from her family for about twenty years.

Part of the debt was for borrowed money and the balance for rent, and when the family left town they promised to pay as soon as they could.

Mr. Walters had no idea that he would ever receive the money due him and dismissed it from his mind, hence his great surprise when he opened the letter and two ten dollar and a five dollar bill dropped out. Miss Neary explained that her mother died six weeks ago and on her death bed requested her daughter, if it was ever possible, to pay the debt due Mr. Walters. The daughter promised and has redeemed her pledge to her dying mother.

It is unfortunate there are not more people like Mrs. Neary and her daughter. The world would be better if more people could remember and were willing to pay a just debt after a lapse of twenty years.

THE GENUNG STREET TRACEDY.

The Affair as Much a Mystery as Ever-New Witnesses to Be Called at the

There is still much speculation as to the true inwardness of the tragedy on Genung street, Sunday morning, and theories of a double murder and of murder and suicide are set up and knocked down time after time.

At the inquest, this evening, several witnesses who have not been known in the affair will be examined, and it is expected that the result will be to upset the testimony of some of the wi nesses already examined.

While there is nothing yet developed that will change the general aspect of the case, as stated in the Angus, on Monday, it is evident that there has been somelying done both to the reporters and before the coroner's jury, and as we have previously stated there are people who, if they would tell the sruth, could clear up whatever of mystery surrounds the case.

John Tierney, one of the victims of the Sunday morning tragedy on Genung street, was buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery, at 40'clock, yesterday afternoon, but as he was regarded as a murderer and suicide he could not be buried in consecrated

About fifty persons were present, among them being Tommy McGuire, his stepson, who according to some officials and newspaper men is suspected of being his murderer.

There were no prayers and no services of any kind and poor John Tierney, the suicide or the victim of an assassin's bullet, whichever it may be, was laid to rest. Not a tear was shed for him, but a few devout Catholics knelt upon the ground and made the sign of the cross as the earth was shoveled into the grave.

SHELL ANNIE.

Nobody expected General Sherman to come into Atlanta from the south.

Oh, no; in the natural course of events he must have certainly shouldered his way right straight on from the north, and accordingly the grim and grimy, frayed out fragments of Hood's Confederate army wallowed in the stifling trenches all along the vast semicircular line of outworks that faced the valley of the Chattahooche and commanded the approaches from the Allatoona hills

But he of the eagle eye was a strategist. He wanted to cut off and coop up the gray jackets in the city, and for that reason he quietly marched the larger part of his army up the western bank of the river eight or ten miles, flung them across the river, and with a mighty swing of that ponderous trip hammer of war he struck them from the south, thus cutting off their lines of supplies by the Georgia railroad. Then followed those terrible days which wound up with the fierce onslaught of July 22, when the hopeless, half starved southern men and the gallant men of the west met in a mighty gladiatorial contest which resulted in the fall of Atlanta.

These are matters for the historian, but what I am going to recount is one of these wild, weird romances with which this terrible conflict was so fraught, and here is the strange story:

"On to the sea!" was the watchword of Sherman's armies, and the sullen and dogged retreat of the Confederates to Jonesboro was the first movement of the defeated and despairing Confederates.

Jonesboro was a little inland town, nestled amid field and forest, interspersed with beautiful undulating hills and grassy valleys green with the bope of the harvest, but little suited as a defensive point for the bruised and battered legions who were recoiling slowly toward the southern sea.

Breastworks had been hastily thrown up flanking the line of the Central railroad, and in the ditches behind them the straggling remnant of obstinate Confederates was intrenched.

It was a gloriously beautiful summer day when the skirmish line of the northern hosts debouched from the works and rook up position in front of these breastworks.

Taken by surprise after relying in vain on the ability of the southern troops to check the onflow of the legions of the conquering hosts, the womcu and children, led by the lame and the half and the agod men of the country, were fleeing for life, panic stricken and utterly demoralized.

As the sun race over the swelling ridges the eyes of the soldiers of either army caught the gleam of a little white tent, half hidden in a wood, just a litthe to the Lift of the line of attack, and above it fluttered a tiny white flag no bigger than a num's hand.

It was a woman's handkerehief, and all the chivalr as feelings of the American soldier were moused as the grim veterans caught sight of that little appraling bit of cambric floating there through the uprising mists of war. The order was passed to respect that flag, and when the great guns began their work and shot and shell were hurled blazing and crashing across field and wood from either direction never a gunner trained his piece toward a point near that little white tent.

The battle was fiercely fought, but the combat was of short duration, and as the shadows lengthened castward the southern troops were seen in full retreat, leaving the field to the triumphant Federals. As they swept forward a drummer boy, Otto Barden, of a Pennsylvania regiment paused by the little white tent in the wood.

Guards in blue uniform surrounded it, and while the smoke of battle swirled above and around there was a plaintive cry from the tent, and the stalwart surgeon lifted the flap of the little tent and emerged, followed by an old negress, bearing in her arms a ting, while bun-

"Please God, marsa, is you gwinter take us off ter de nort?" wailed she, with the big tears coursing down her withered face. "It'll sho' kill Mis' Aunie of ya' doos."

"Here, give me your canteen, Otto," said the surgeon. "Hold her head up, auntie," and sprinkling a few drops on the tiny head he continued: "Shell Annie, I haptize thee in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and may they ever protect thee as has the God of battle today. Twenty years after the furling of the flags the battlefield of Jonesboro was a cornfield, and the rustling rows of the crested corn hid from view the almost obliterated traces of strife. Peace and plenty reigned, and the one armed veteran of the north was hobnobbing with the peg legged veteran of the south as they laughingly recounted the experiences of the war.

Asheville had become a great resort for summer visitors from all sections on account of its quietude, its healthful air and water and its splendid scenic surroundings.

As the train slowed up at the little station a man, apparently blessed with all the activity of youth, but bearing about him that numistakable air of maturity that indicates intimate knowledge of and rough experience with life, stepped on the platform and strolled up the hill toward the hotel.

The dusty twilight of the dying summer day softened the rugged outlines of the gloomy mountains, and the tinkle of a crystal stream made music in the thickets below.

Suddenly the stranger was startled by a wild cry, and around a turn of the road came a horse at full speed, and in heels, there was a fintter of white.

Springing forward and dropping his belongings, the stranger clutched the reins of the frightened animal and arrested his mad career, but the shock was so sudden that the occupant of the buggy was tossed into the bushes by the road-

Releasing the horse, which stood trembling with fear and excitement, the stranger gently lifted the prostrate form, and as the crowd from the hotel came rushing to the spot she opened her eyes in a dazed and startled way.
"Are you hurt much?" asked the stranger. "No, thank you, I was only frightened. I had just got into the buggy and was going for a ride when he l.ccame frightened and ran away. Oh, how can I ever thank you?" "Best by not mentioning it again," said the stranger brusquely, handing her his card as he resigned her to her friends and walked away. On the following morning the stranger are-e late after his fatiguing journey, and when he went down to breakfast beside his plate was a little perfumed note, and he opened it and read it, half amu-d and half in wonder:

it, half arms of and fail in Wolder:

As a partial recognition of your kindiness, I wish to extend to you an invitation to enjoy a pierine ercursion with us today. It is my larth day. Please co not half to eme. Gratefully, Annie Fortance.

On a blank leaf from his notebook Barden wrote a line accepting the invitation and then leasurely finished his The day was perfect, and as the special guest of the heroine of the day he thought he had never felt quite so near at peace with himself and all mankind as he did while lounging on the green grass beneath the shadow of the tall hemlocks at the foot of the mountain with pretty Annie Fontaine.

Chatting in a desultory way, Barden suddenly recalled the day and the drama of 20 years ago.
"Do you know," said he, "that I was one of those Yanks that marched with Sherman to the sea?" "Indeed? Why, you must have been a very youthful soldier." "I was a drummer boy, and this day 20 years ago I was in the battle of Jonesboro.' "And so was I," said she, with a saucy smile, "for that was my birthday and the place of my nativity."

"What!" he cried, springing to his

"Shell Annie," she replied.

There are some stories that ought to be concluded before they are begun, but this, which is as true as-yes, truer than -most history, reached its natural conclusion then and there, and the Pennsylvania drummer boy now owns one of the finest truit farms around Jonesboro. and the mistress of that southern home is Shell Annie.—Atlanta Journal.

A "Saving" Dog.

About 1,400 anecdotes have been published under the above title, in which dogs have figured in preserving human life. We once had a dog noted for saving things, but there wasn't a life among them. He kept the things he saved under the kitchen dresser, and his hiding place wasn't discovered for a long time -not indeed until it became necessary to tear up the kitchen floor to find a good place to deposit some chloride of lime during a cholera season; then we found what had been "saved by a dog." There were a couple of kittens, a cat, two or three rats and a chicken -all stone dead; a large assortment of bones, the remnants of an oftoman, a couple of teaspoons, a canary bird and a nutmeg grater. It is rarely there is so much saved by a dog, for they are generally improvident .- London Tit-Bits.

Wonderful Birdlike Machine Constructed by Professor Lilienthal.

Can a man fly? Learned professors of the sciences of aeronautics agree that he cannot, and a faundable commission of experts e e at d by the German government of investigate into the posabilities of aerial navigation have finally and decisively and onicially said that it is impossible. Still an ingenious and observant German of the name of Otto Linenthal, after a long erres of experiments and in the face of the decisions of the emment scientists, has succeeded in proving that a clever man can fly, and fly for considerable distances too.

Professor Lilienthal, like most men who have solved difficult problems, has gone clear away from the principles to which other men have found limitations. When he decided to fly, in other words, he left the possibilities afforded by the balloon entirely out of his calculations. Balloons, said he, are crude affairs, dangerous, not to be depended upon, nondirigible and clumsy. There is nothing in nature built upon the principle of the balloon, yet there are things in nature which can fly, and fly much better than the best balloons. Those things are birds. To the birds, then, I will go for the model of my flying machine. And to the birds he went.

From these same birds it was that Professor Lilienthal learned the true principles of aerial navigation, which principles he has succeeded to a degree in adapting to the uses of man. He first learned that it is the concave shape of a bird's wing that enables it to soar, rising or falling at will without muscular exertion in the teeth of a high wind. Then he learned that a bird's wing bones are constructed similarly to those in a man's arm. Knowing these things, he built his flying machine, or, to be more correct, his soaring machine. He made for himself of light but impervious cotton cloth and split willow wands two immense wings 23 feet from tip to tip, and a practicable if not highly ornamental rudder or tail.

He preserved in their construction as nearly as possible the form of a bird's wings and tail, increasing the parabolic corve of the bird's wings to the exact proportionate degree for his larger ones. These wings and the tail, weighing in all only 25 pounds, are so constructed as to fold up like the wings of a bat. Having completed them, the professor adjusted them to his arms, took a run along a hilltop and calmly and confidently jumped over the side, spreading his wings as he did so. He soared some distance and alighted in safety and comfort. He repeated his experiment many, many times, learning how to centrol his apparatus, how to change direction, how to rise or descend at will. He improved his wings and tail and kept on practicing until now he can scar for several hundred yards, rise to a much greater height than he started from and fulfill most of the functions of a big bird, save only that of propelling himself in still air and starting his flight from level ground. These two things a man is not strong enough to do, the bird possessing much greater strength for its size and weight than the most muscular man. But what Professor Lilienthal lacks in scrength he has made up in ingentity, for he has now constructed a little motor, operated by carbonic acid gas, which, while it adds scarcely anything to the weight of his flying apparatus, is capable of developing continuously two horsepower, or more than enough energy to work the wings. Indeed in the first trial the little motor developed too much strength and broke the wings, putting a stop to further experiments for the time.

If Professor Lilienthal succeeds in perfecting the great invention, the practicability of which he has already demonstrated, and in making aerial navigation on the simple principles favored by the birds safe for mankind, he will have achieved a notable triumph over the wonderful forces of nature as well as the world's greatest scientists. And he seems very likely to succeed, unless he should grow careless in handling his experimental wings and perchance fall victim to the awful fate which overtook the lamented and legendary Icarus, the first man who attempted to fly.-Chi-

THE BALLOON CYCLE.

The Latest French Army Means of Carrying War Dispatches.

There floated over the hamlet of Villeneuve la Garenne the other afternoon in midair a balloon. Suddenly it appeared to burst and fell rapidly toward the earth. Fearing that a disaster had occurred, the terrified folk ran to the spot at which they expected the aerostat would reach the ground, when to their amazement they saw a parachute detach itself from the car and descend gently. Immediately the earth was touched one of the passengers jumped upon a small bicycle which he had brought with him from the aerial regions, and he disappeared in the direction of Levallois, in the neighborhood of Paris, as rapidly as the machine could carry him.

The explanation of this singular occurrence is simple. The balloon was the Caliban, and the ascent was made from Levallois by Captain Capazza and M. Hervien, the latter being the cyclist. Their object was to test the possibility of a balloon being used for carrying war dispatches, and they assumed that an enemy succeeded in destroying it. Yet they proved that by means of the parachute they would be able to make good their escape and to outdistance their pursuers with the aid of the portable bicycle.—London Telegraph.

Boat Propelled by a Turbino Wheel. Several trials have been made on the Elbe with a boat propelled not by the ordinary screw, which replaced the paddle wheel, but by means of a turbine wheel. The inventor, Herr Zenner, states that a much greater speed can be obtained than with the screw, because the friction is much less. Three boats have already been constructed on this pattern. - Westminster Gazette.

I secured a bottle of Munyon's Pheumatiem Cure, and after taking six doses she was able to rise and dress herself unassisted. I have also been relieved of sharp shooting pains after taking a few doses. I considered the cure a marvelous one. Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of body. Acute or muscular rheumatism can be cured in from one to five days. It speedily cures shooting pains, sciatica, lumbago and all rheumatic pains in the back, hips and loins. It seldom fails to give relief after one or two doses, and almost invariably cures before one bottle has been used.

Munyon's Stomach and Dyspepsia cure is guarateed to cure all forms of stomach troubles and indigestion.

Munyon's Homespathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for n early every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

A STAMPEDED CONVENTION.

& Well Planned and Well Executed Piece of Work-"The One Armed Seldler Racket" Sprung on the Convention-Two Good Speeches-The Hock-Strong Combination Smashed-The Other Nominations.

Never was a convention more ef-Jectually stampeded than the Republican County Convention at Goshen, yesterday; and never were the plans for a stampede more adroitly laid and more artistically carried out, and given the appearance of spontaneity.

Those who were opposed to the Hock-Odell combination on Strong for Sheriff picked out Adam W. Beakes as the only man who could be successfully used to beat it, and during the neon recess they engineered a deal by which Messrs. Brazee, Boyce, Oldroyd, Mable and Beakes pledged themselves that the candidate who received the most votes on the informal ballot should receive whatever votes the other candidates sould throw to him. Then to make sure that Beakes would have more votes than Boyce they induced some Middletown delegates who had pledged themselves to Brazee to vote for Beakes. Several delegates elected in the interest of Joshua Oldroyd and definitely piedged to him were seduced from their allegiance and pursuaded to vote for Beakes. In this way thirty-two votes were secured for Beakes on the informal ballot to twenty-six for Boyce, the next strongest man, the others straggling far in the rear.

No sconer was the vote announced than Mayor Stansbury withdrew Brazee's name in favor of Beakes. Comrade Sproat withdrew the name of Comrade Mabie. Judge Fullerton withdrew the name of Boyce and Col. Bradley that of Oldroyd.

Then everything was in readiness for springing what one of the parties to the deal cynically called, "the one-armed soldier racket." RecorderBradner had been selected to do the star act and he did it, making as good a convention speech as one need wish to hear. The speech had but a single key, the old soldier, but the changes were rung on it in most effective style.

.Whether Col. Bradley was slated for a speech by the managers of the Beakes combine the writer of this does not assume to say, but no sooner had Recorder Bradner finished than the gallant Colonel was on his feet, and with his winsome smile was craving the indulgence of the convention for a moment. He spoke with deep feeling of the privations and sufferings, the sacrifices and the heroism of those who risked life and limb on Southern battlefields, of the debt of gratitude the country owed them, and of the opportunity afforded this convention to show that Orange c unty Republicans are not ungrateful. Col. Bradley's eloquent and impassioned words swept the convention from its moorings. Be-Fore he had talked five minutes it was plain to the dullest comprehension that candidate Strong's name was no longer Selah but Dennis. Major Sproat, the original, first, last and all the time Oldroyd man of the Middletown delegation, who very seldom does the comrade act, was so carried away by enthusiasm that at the end of one of Col. Bradley's glowing periods he interrupted him with: "Comiades, three cheers for Comrade Bradley." They were given cheering. Col. Bradley closed by moving the nomination of Adam W. Beakes by acclamation. Judge Little, who acted as steerer for the convention, leaned over to Col. Bradley and appealed to him to withdraw his motion, since it would cause dissatisfaction among the the Strong men if they were not given a chance to vote.

If Mr. Strong or his lieutenants had been wise they would have yielded to the inevitable and moved Mr. Beakes' nomination by acclamation. They knew they were beaten, but they were determined to vote it out | Middletown Light & Power and they did, the result being 100 for Beakes to 41 for Strong.

A yell went up when the vote was announced and the slate makers realized how thoroughly the slate had been smashed.

With a sigh of relief that the strain was over, the convention turned to the nomination of a candidate for Superintendent of the Poor.

Judge Little named A. L. Deeser for Coroner and the nomination was made with a burrah.

John J. Peirott and John Corwin, noth of Newburgh, were named for Coroner in the first district. Mr. 至 mk objected to the words first disbrice, saying that Coroner was a journty not a district office. Mr. Adame, of Newburgh, said there was no rec in quibbling, there were two soroners to be nominated, one had already been nominated, and for the parpose of convenient distinction he noved a ballot for "the other coro

When the informal ballot for Sheriff was announced, showing that he had one vote, he rose from his seat in the corner of the room and said: "I am not a candidate.
